

Many problems in the world arise from the initiation of force when the people calling themselves “the state” have a solution.

- * The solution is for the people of the earth to stop asking people calling themselves “the state” to initiate force on their behalf.
- * Evil does not arise solely from evil people, but also from good people who tolerate the initiation of force as a means to their own ends.
- * In this manner, good people have empowered evil people throughout history.

Achieving a free society requires courage—to think,

to talk,
and to act

—especially when it is easier to do nothing.
